INTERESTING HISTORY OF GLEICHEN

(By J. N. McDonald in the Calgary Alberta.)

In a couple of months the village of Gleichen will be known to more people than the town of Gleichen will take its place as the youngest of the incorporated towns of Alberta.

Gleichen is one of the oldest places along the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and its history for the past twenty-five years has been a very varied one. In the summer of 1883, the C. P. R. railway construction reached Gleichen, and it was made a supply depot for the contractors and was afterwards made a freight divisional point as the road was pushed further west. A railway yard was laid out, round house and machine shops were erected, and a considerable little village grew up in which the railway employees had their homes. For years Gleichen was known principally to railway men, as a freight divisional point, about half way between Medicine Hat and Camrose. It was also well known of a ranching center, although most of the cattle shipped from the range were looked at at Stokard, a few miles west.

Gleichen was almost a dead town, the headquarters for the distribution of rations and supplies to the Blackfoot and Indians, whose reserve was immediately south of the railway line. It grew as a railway station, and in the fall of 1889, when the C. P. R. decided to concentrate all its railway shops at Calgary and make that city the headquarters for the whole western division. The round house and machine shops at Gleichen were demolished, the yard tracks torn up and the employees transferred to Calgary. Nobody ever dreamed that Gleichen would become an important grain shipping point and the future looked very dark indeed. A few of the younger business men, among whom were Messrs. A. Griesbach and J. J. Giesse, however, did not give up. The place and continued on in business in the hope of better days.

Mr. Bruns died last year, but lived long enough to see Gleichen start on a new era of prosperity. Mr. Griesbach is still a prominent member of the town.

For years after the close of the slopes Gleichen lay dormant and even for years after the settlers began to pour into the country, Gleichen was passed by as being too dry for successful agricultural purposes. The awakening of the coming settlers to the possibility that land in the Gleichen district might after all be adapted to grain raising took place about three years ago and was chiefly brought about by the pushing action of the great irrigation undertaking of the present Pacific railway. At the present time nearly every section for forty miles north and south of Gleichen track is more or less under cultivation and the town of Gleichen is today light in the center of the largest irrigation scheme on the continent of America. It will house great crops every year in the district, and is also a guarantee of the future of the town as its business center.

When I visited Gleichen last week the annual exhibition of the agricultural society was being held, and nowhere in the province have there been a better selection of grain and grasses in the field. It is especially horses, selected or not for sale, that I saw there. Nearly all of the lot I was informed were grown without artificial aid, and although the water is at hand for use in emergency, it is sufficient rainfall this year to render it unnecessary.

A visit to the Gleichen fair this year would certainly have been a surprise to many people who have always looked on the dry town of Alberta as an arid and dry fit for grazing purposes.

Overgrown horses that had taken prizes in different classes at the provincial exhibition held at Edmonton, and even those close competitors at the Gleichen fair.

When I asked for further information in regard to the quality of the grain raised in the district, I was told "Don't overlook the fact that last year Alberta grown grain took first prize at the Chicago grain exhibition, and the wheat that carried off first prize in the Alberta exhibit was grown on the farm of Mr. John Buckley, just two miles north of Gleichen. The only oats that graded No. 1 on the Winnipeg market in 1907 were grown in the district. It is hardly raining a close to town, had an average yield of 97 bushels per acre from a large field. If you want any further proof of the superiority of the Gleichen district, just take a drive out and see for yourself some of the crops in the vicinity."

This latter I did, and I found that the extent of the agricultural development of the district and the condition of the crops was a revelation to me. Had I not seen it, I could not have believed that such a transformation could possibly have been brought about in the short space of two or three years. The crops were all nearly ready for the stack. There was not a single bush of grain in the field, and the berries producing a very heavy yield, the grain was remarkable.

Another very noticeable feature of the district was the fact that the farmers showing that the district is being settled by a superior class of farmers, well to do and well educated. I had an opportunity of talking to a great many of the farmers, the largest of them being from the provinces of the United States, and the benefit of the town and district is entirely to the advantage of the farmers with their experience, thus saving to Alberta. They considered that they were especially fortunate in being able to secure such good land close to railway facilities and with such other advantages as no rancher could make a price.

The Gleichen Agricultural Society is entitled to rank among the most progressive agricultural societies in the province. It was organized in the first year of its existence it has accomplished a great deal. It has a fine stock and a fine herd of cattle, and a fine herd of horses. It has a fine herd of cattle, and a fine herd of horses. It has a fine herd of cattle, and a fine herd of horses.

No better evidence than this could be given of the faith which the people have in the future of their town and district.

Another indication which is doing good work is the Gleichen Board of Agriculture, which is doing good work in a number of ways. The principal action at present engaging its attention is the matter of the Gleichen Agricultural Society, which the board is doing its best to secure for that district. The board is also doing its best to secure for that district. The board is also doing its best to secure for that district.

Staff-Sergeant McLeod received word from Cassel yesterday that the provincial exhibition held at Edmonton had been found near Cassel's lake and it was given down to make an investigation.

AMERICANS AFTER BOW VALLEY SEED

United States agriculturists now acknowledge that pure seed is more easily obtained in Western Canada than elsewhere. This statement is borne out by the fact that Professor Shaw, dean of American agriculture, is now arranging to secure pure seed from the Bow valley agriculturists for the purpose of distribution among the farmers of North Dakota. Even levels of transportation companies operating in the middle west are securing winter wheat from the Bow valley for the purpose of distribution among farmers whose land lies tributary to their lines. There is now a determined effort to raise some of the standard of that raised in the Canadian west. American millers demand high Canadian wheat to mix with softer varieties grown in the States, and are importing in ever increasing quantities. Some of the American wheat companies with Alberta red and Manitoba hard.

Prizes Won at Calgary by Clark Bros.

Shipped Thirty Cars of Cattle.

During the past week thirty cars of cattle have been shipped from Gleichen and Stokard, consisting of some of the finest stock ever sent out from this far-flung stock country. The cars averaged 17 animals to a car, making in all a total of 510 head. Of these the P. Burns Company shipped 21 cars and W. McManis the balance.

Gleichen Mercantile Co. Sell Out.

Gleichen, Alta., Aug. 30, 1909. Having disposed of our business to Messrs. Barclay and Hall, we wish to thank the people of Gleichen and district for their kind patronage in the past, and hope they will extend to our successors the same kindness as they have to us. All satisfactory accounts which have been carried up to will be continued by the new firm.

GLEICHEN MERCANTILE CO.

The examination of engineers is to be held at Gleichen, tomorrow, Friday—July 30, at 10 a.m. The examiners are Mr. Buxton, inspector of steam boilers.

Mr. Z. D. Bray, formerly from Stokard, Minn., bringing with him a fine trotting horse, a colt of the famous "Hennet," with a record of 2:8. Mr. Bray states he is now having a pair prepared for a building 100 by 50 feet to design the Gleichen Hotel, which will have a bowling alley in the basement. The best pool room west of Winnipeg, a confectionery store and a short order restaurant on the first floor, and a dance hall on the second floor on the second floor. He is also thinking of running a moving picture show three nights a week.

The Gleichen Trading Co. are keeping abreast with the times and have made many improvements to their store. The hardware department is now in a separate building, and is well equipped for all the needs of the community. It is a very modern and comfortable place, and is well equipped for all the needs of the community.

Messrs. Barclay & Hall arrive in the city tomorrow morning. They are a very modern and comfortable place, and is well equipped for all the needs of the community. It is a very modern and comfortable place, and is well equipped for all the needs of the community.

Scientists Will Visit Gleichen

Word has been received that the members of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, who are touring Canada, will stop at Gleichen at 1:30 next Saturday afternoon to pay their respects to the Blackfoot Indians and meet Mr. Giesse, who is in charge of the Indian reservation. Mr. Giesse is a very modern and comfortable place, and is well equipped for all the needs of the community. It is a very modern and comfortable place, and is well equipped for all the needs of the community.

The fair campaign of buying and selling goods will be in full swing at the big store of Messrs. Barclay and Hall, with a large and high-class stock of groceries, big additions to their dry goods line, comprising a much larger selection than heretofore handled at the Corner Store. They expect to reap a share of fall 1909 business. Their large stock of goods is well displayed at the display of ready-to-wear goods, such as shirts, waistcoats, children's clothing, and coats. They also stock the famous Walter's pure wool underwear for ladies, misses and children. Hosiery, the celebrated "Hessons" No. 204, underwear for men, also the celebrated "Hessons" in medium and heavy weight for men and boys. As they are showing the big man's shirt of the H.B.K. make in several weights and the biggest man in Alberta can be fitted at Messrs. Barclay and Hall. They also stock the H.B.K. gloves, white, sleeping suits, etc., etc. of the H.B.K. make in several weights and the biggest man in Alberta can be fitted at Messrs. Barclay and Hall. They also stock the H.B.K. gloves, white, sleeping suits, etc., etc. of the H.B.K. make in several weights and the biggest man in Alberta can be fitted at Messrs. Barclay and Hall.

The starting announcement that Mr. McKie's little girl had diptheria was made on yesterday morning, and although a Calgary doctor was sent for to assist Dr. Farquharson their combined efforts proved unavailing. However, Mr. McKie's house has been quarantined, and every effort is being made to prevent the spread of the disease.

The Call has received an interesting letter from Commissioner F. K. Jones, who is in charge of the Stettin Exposition. He enclosed a picture post card of some of the sights he is viewing, and we take it that the Stettin fair has the Gleichen fair "down." Frank apparently is to be expected the sight immediately, and it does not say whether or not he will be home in time to run for mayor.

Strong Letter on College Location

The following letter has been sent The Call by Mr. Teghla and having appeared in the Edmonton Alberta Homestead it will be interesting to read the premises reply:

At the very successful irrigation convention held in the city of Edmonton, the burning question was the "location of the agricultural college" which aroused quite as much interest and discussion as the important question of irrigation.

Those who had an opportunity of discussing the location question with the premier, members of the senate, and officials of the department of agriculture, certainly had some opinions.

Previously I had refused to believe that Premier Rutherford would insist on placing this college in his own town, in face of the strong and increasing opposition of the farmers of the valley, but having his intention, of which he was so sure, was a revelation to me. He implied that the wise of the people, opposed in the majority given him at the last election, invested him with power to place the college where he pleased, and Strathcona is his choice.

While it was true that the Rutherford government was returned by the people's majority, it was to show our appreciation of the good work accomplished (and it is only fair to say that for amateur legislators they did well) and to give them the opportunity to carry out the policy which they outlined at the time of the election; but the location of the agricultural college was not an issue at that time.

The Hon. C. W. Ross (a hitherto the shrewdest of our politicians) did refer to this question at his meetings in different towns, but I repeat it was not a question of the last election, and if the premier takes his token of appreciation for work done, and promised to be done, as a license to act in this arbitrary manner, he may find that "the people" and "the majority" will be represented and embodied in some other person after the next election.

It seems preposterous that a senate composed of representatives of various professions and trades with only one representing agriculture, led by the principal of the university, should take upon themselves to settle the most important question that has yet come before the people; without any reference to the people following the calling although they compose some 80 per cent of the whole population of Alberta; more especially when it is known, that some members of the senate and others are working with a due sense of favor to come.

It is really admitted by everyone, the premier included, that agriculture is the most important industry and the agricultural education is most urgently needed, yet every other class of education has been provided for, while this has been neglected. If agriculture is as important as all admit, it should be considered accordingly and the agricultural college should have been the first to be established.

Those who care to give any thought to this matter can easily see from the upward trend in values of agricultural products, how closely the consumer is treading on the heels of the producer; we need this college; also for purposes of research, as our very existence depends on the way we cultivate our fields. Those of us who have followed this phase of the question know the way the soil is being searched for lost mysteries and how she is being made to yield them, but work of this kind although as necessary and important in this province as any other, has not yet been touched.

The great railway magnate J. J. Hill stated recently that the timber of the United States would be gone in 19 or 15 years, and in the same paper in which this statement is made, I read, that the scientists of the department of agriculture of the United States have decided that a better quality of corn can be made from corn stalks, than from wood of any kind, showing the inestimable value of scientific research.

I give this example to illustrate the importance of having suitable professors for both agricultural teaching and research.

The question of economy is so often given as a reason for having the college at Strathcona, for instance, that one professor of chemistry could take all classes on this subject, would undoubtedly be the most extravagant kind of economy. As every one knows, agricultural chemistry is quite apart from any other branch of the sciences, and a specialist is needed for teaching and research, and a discovery equal to the one alluded to above, would pay for the establishment and upkeep of all the colleges on the American continent.

This question of a college forming a part of the university and under university management is not a question to be handled with kid gloves, but must be taken up in earnest by those of us who honestly wish to see our agricultural face the place it is entitled to, and I will be cheerier to appropriate a sufficient sum of money to put an extra building or two in Strathcona (if the premier has set his heart on having new buildings on the university grounds) and pension the professors who have been promised positions on the staff or give them a life lease homestead to recompense them for the work they have done in trying to mould public opinion, and for their disappointment in meeting their expectations, than allow such a calamity to happen as locating the agricultural college at Staggles, under university management. Every agricultural college in operation in Canada today is a separate institution, and the one at Guelph, the most successful in the world, thus why should not Alberta's have the same opportunity?

As a supporter of the government, I very much regret having to take this stand, but the premier's expressed intention to place the college of Strathcona leaves no other course. It is my honest conviction also, the conviction of a greater number of farmers than the government has any conception of, that to allow this would be a Senatorial blunder. The secret here that the agricultural interests of this province could possibly receive.

Our legislature has been lacking in the sunshine of political prosperity for such a long time that some of its members have, and a severe lesson of examples, which has left traces of that fatal (no future need) disease that only the most drastic remedies can wholly eliminate, and unfortunately this disease is infectious and liable to affect other people of departments.

We must therefore regard it as our solemn individual duty and one that we owe to posterity, as well as to the present generation, to see that those among our legislature and executive who are afflicted are either cured, or, if beyond the cure, stage supplanted.

W. J. THORNTON, Calgary.

TOWN AND DISTRICT

See the farmers' mile.
Harvest is almost over.
Threshing is now general.
The biggest harvest on record.
Excellent harvest weather the past week.

Frank Stuart has sold out his livery business in Basano.

Everyone is happy—the farmers have received their reward.

The ducks suffered Labor Day at the hands of local sportsmen.

Gleichen's three elevators are now preparing to handle grain.

The bumper crop is no longer hopeful for. It is an absolute certainty.

W. Herbert McKie returned yesterday from the Seattle fair all alone.

A social dance was held in the Foresters' Hall on the evening of Labor Day.

What about nutcrackers since the Saturday afternoon. We have good stock. Let them work.

Miss Larkins arrived from Winnipeg Friday to visit her parents and sisters for some time.

Labor Day passed quietly in town, all of it being chisel, only a few peddling to work.

Geo. W. Hunter is putting in a very large weighing scales on Crowfoot street to use in his coal and draying business.

T. Henderson has added a commodious warehouse to his block on Gleichen street to be used by Messrs. Bardeen & Hall.

Quite a number of Gleichenites picked up the Rose Labor Day, although there was no general parade as has been suggested.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stuart and three children left Basano on Tuesday to take in the Seattle fair, and will be away about three weeks.

The memorial service of Margaret McKie will be conducted in the Presbyterian church at 7:30 next Sunday evening, Sept. 12th.

Enid Griesbach is preparing to build a barn 40 by 22 and a stable 50 by 21 feet on Front street, which he has arranged to lease to R.N.W. Montreal Poles.

John Clark, who has left for Scotland, where he has purchased a small farm, and intends spending his remaining years. He has been one of the pioneers of this district, and many will regret his departure.

"What are you doing for your town? If you have not any confidence in the growth and improvement of the town and country in which you live, live on earth, do you expect other people to move there and cause the country to develop and grow for your benefit?"

Halfhearted effort is doubly discomfited.

The man who tries to taper off generally tapers out.

Refraining from evil is not all there is to the upright life.

A flower in the sick room is better than a bouquet on the grave.

One of life's funniest spectacles is the man who takes himself too seriously.

There are seldom any regrets in the pay envelope that the wife handles.

We never did get all the sympathy we were entitled to when we had the tooth ache.

Laughter is the lubricant that makes the wheels of life run smoothly.

Perhaps it is a good thing that we do not know what the babies think of us.

Charity is giving something we have and want somebody to have who has not and needs it.
